NOTICE TO THE MARKET

Hapvida Participações e Investimentos S.A. (B3:HAPV3) (“Hapvida” or “Company”) informs its shareholders and the market in general that it has been the victim of a cybersecurity breach incident. The Company immediately became aware of unauthorized access and stopped it through internal cyber security teams and specialized partners, which have been conducting a comprehensive analysis to determine the scope of the invasion.

The potentially accessed information only includes customer registration data (such as name, address, CPF and CNPJ), so there was no access to medical records or financial information. There was no interruption in our operations at any time due to the incident. Based on the preliminary investigation, the unauthorized access would have the potential to reach limited invoicing data for individual and corporate customers of one of the Company’s subsidiary. The investigation is still ongoing and is expected to be completed in the coming weeks, with the Company supporting the police authority and security experts.

The Company also hired a top cybersecurity firm that is conducting a complete review of our infrastructure and applications to further strengthen our risk mitigation plan and incident prevention protocols. Further information on this subject will be eventually and timely disclosed to our shareholders and the market in general.
