NOTICE TO THE MARKET

Ambipar Participações e Empreendimentos SA ("Ambipar" or "Company") (B3: AMBP3), informs its shareholders and the market in general, with great satisfaction, that Ambipar Environmental LatAm (formerly Disal), one of the companies of the group, announces the start of construction on the GIRI Project ("Project" or "GIRI") located in the city of Santiago, Chile.

GIRI will be a classification, pre-treatment and preparation plant for recycling and recovery of waste with a capacity of 60,000 tons per year, with potential net sales of USD 8 million and a potential EBITDA margin of 70% per year. The total investment of the Project will be approximately USD 18 million, and the start-up is scheduled for early January 2023.

The Project aims to address new trends in waste management and environmental public policies in Chile, as established by the Extended Producer Responsibility Law (REP in Spanish), published in 2021, which aims to ensure the recovery of industrial and domestic waste separated in the origin, especially recyclables, in order to ensure the correct disposal of waste.

Additionally, the Company will build, over the next year, four more small GIRI plants, in areas with industrial activity around the regional capitals of northern, central and southern Chile, with the objective of facilitating the separation and recovery of waste, without the need to transport it.

For Ambipar, this project is in line with the strategy of expansion and insertion of new technologies and services in Latin America, through complete solutions for management, recovery of waste, transformation into new recycled products, giving a new beginning to what used to be discarded.

The Company reiterates that it will keep the market informed and we are available for any additional clarifications that may be necessary.
