NOTICE TO THE MARKET

Minerva S.A. ("Minerva" or "Company"), leading beef exporter in South America, informs its shareholders and the market in general that on this date, in partnership with Niceplanet Geotechnology, a specialist in geospatial analysis, has launched SMGeo Prospec, an application to support rural producers, anticipating another one of its commitments on sustainability, which initially was planned for December of this year, thus, enabling socio-environmental analysis for the entire agribusiness production chain.

Developed by Niceplanet Geotechnology, the new app allows for rural producers throughout Brazil to carry out detailed geospatial surveys, access historic data and socio-environmental analyses of farms, by simply using the SICAR (National Rural Environmental Cadastre System) or the individual farmer data registered in SICAR. This now enables the Company to place the most advanced technology, currently used in its analysis and monitoring systems, directly into the hands of the producer. This is the same technology that has earned Minerva Foods its expertise in traceability and, successively, the best results among major players in the Federal Public Ministry's assessment, the main and most reliable third-party verification process for the agricultural and livestock chain. The database allows users to consult the 'dirty list' on slave labor and lists of environmental embargoes. It also has the capability of displaying maps, including satellite images, and compliance of rural properties registered in SICAR. The geographic analysis enables verification of overlaps with embargoed areas, deforestation, indigenous lands, conservation units, and quilombola territories.

The Company reaffirms its commitment in maintaining its shareholders and the market in general up to date regarding the progress of this and any other matters of interest.
