

Integrated System Policy

Eternit and Precon Goiás, a supplier of raw materials, products and solutions for the construction industry, establishes the Integrated System Policy.

Focused on meeting the expectations of stakeholders (customers, employees, suppliers, shareholders, society and public and private agencies) and a commitment to continuous improvement of its quality management, environmental, health and safety and social responsibility, the Company's policy is based on the following guidelines:

- To supply quality products and services, with the aim of providing satisfaction to our clients.
- To preserve the environment and minimize the environmental impacts generated by our activities.
- To guarantee the health and physical integrity of our employees and service providers in all our activities, including during the safe use of chrysotile asbestos.
- To assume a public commitment for the defense and protection of Human Rights, and the Rights of Children, Fundamental Labor Rights, the combat of corruption and the promotion of good corporate governance practices, in the fulfillment of all the requirements applicable to our activities.
- To attribute worth to human capital, complying with the international instruments related to working practices and the prevention of accidents and occupational diseases, given that the Company's employees are fundamental to its achievements.
- To operate in an ethical manner in relation to society, shareholders, suppliers and clients, seeking sustainability of its businesses.

The Integrated System Policy (PSI) ensures the integration of Eternit's management tools and provides guidelines on activities at the plants, in the constant search for improvement in the areas of health, safety and environment. The Integrated Management System controls aspects related to PSI, ranging from social responsibility to the environment. Eternit and its outsourced transport companies also meet the requirements of the Sector Quality Program (PSQ Chrysotile).
