

Azul is the most on-time airline in the world

In July 2022, Cirium named Azul the most on-time airline in the world

São Paulo, August 18, 2022 – Azul S.A., “Azul”, (B3: AZUL4, NYSE: AZUL), the largest airline in Brazil in terms of number of flights and cities served, was named by Cirium (leading aviation data analysis company) the most on-time airline in the world in July 2022.

According to “The Airline On-Time Performance Report”, Azul’s on-time performance was 89.50%, leading ahead of all airlines analyzed in the five regions – Asia and Pacific, North America, Europe, Africa, Middle East, and Latin America. In 2022 Azul was 2 times the most on-time airline in the world and remained as one of the most on-time airlines during the whole year.

“I could not be prouder of our operation and our crewmembers, which led Azul to be not only the most on-time airline in the world, but also the airline with one of the highest customer satisfaction metrics. Demand for Azul’s products and services has never been stronger, and we remain optimistic about the opportunities ahead of us in the second half of the year, seasonally our strongest period,” says John Rodgerson, CEO of Azul.

About Cirium’s report

Cirium’s airline punctuality report is the longest-running analysis in the industry and monitors airline flights on five continents. The analysis considers information from more than 600 real-time flight sources, airports, global distribution systems, position data, and civil aviation authorities, as well as the airlines themselves. A flight is considered on-time when the aircraft arrives at the gate within 15 minutes before the estimated time. In all, the survey evaluated more than 300,000 flights worldwide, 131,000 of which were in Latin America.
